[Transhumanist ideology]

Transhumanist are right, but not the way they think: yes (computer) technologies are changing our self perception, but it should not be as new alienating cyber-prothesis, but as new dynamic models to think epistemologically ourselves.

This is a technology illusion:

freedom is not about moving away from our roots or negate them, at the contrary it's about understanding and integrating them. This is true laic (embodied) transcendence.

Understanding reality is now what (biocognitive) science should be about and thinking that it is équivalent to folk psychology's "evidence" (material "realism") is the contrary. Techno-realism without hermeneutical intelligence is the ruin of the soul.
