[Epistemology vs Morality]

“To do science is not to verify an ontology, it is to deprive oneself of preconceived ontology” (Rastier)

We should stop confusing epistemology & morality (politics). Methodological individualism & Marxian socialism are both right & both wrong. 1/3

This mono-dimensional/polarizing angle of definition is insufficient and sterilizing: it is the current heart of the system which is only resolved through action for action's sake, rationality having degenerated into rationalization of implicit metaphysics and/or or religious.2/3

The nature-nurture debate is has-been. The process of individuation (not "individualization") is biocognitive AND collective, and private metaphysical/religious a priori have deontologically nothing to do , even implicitly, in public science.
