Christophe Rigon / Soto² 🄯 - @ki_cog@mstdn.social @ki_cog

[A-Trust and Collective Rationality]

How to trust a (techno)science whose rationality is increasingly "governed" (etymology of "cybernetics") by private financial institutions (financial selection of projects, therefore of underlying theories/paradigms), even speculative , and by a behaviorist rationality (very Anglo-Saxon) which would claim to speak about the autonomy of living things "from the outside". And this is not going to work out systemically with the web3/DeSci trends.

1/4

#DeSci

2/4

We already know the music (of Woodstock): after the utopian "summer of love", there will still be ultra-liberal disenchantment, the same one that led us to the current economic savagery.

3/4

Trust is, however, the foundation of social relations, and no, it is not enough to digitize it (the principle of blockchain technologies, such as "web3"), hoping that a simple "decentralization" will miraculously and by itself fix the situation.

4/4

@threadreaderapp unroll

• • •